

Halloween Film Festival Game

Creative friends that always want to do something different, well challenge them to present at your Halloween Film Festival.

Get a list of classic horror or not so classic but well known horror films.

Then determine your guest list and group friends and ask if they would be willing to do a 5 minute Horror film based off a classic? Your goal is to get 5 – 10 mini movies for your game.

So depending on your friends, you may ask them to do two apiece, note not all your guests have to do a movie but it is more fun that way. The other option is you try to do a bunch yourself.

Now that you have volunteers give them a horror classic that you ask them to remake.

Titles could include: The Birds, The Exorcist, Halloween, Blair Witch, The Ring, etc...

Make sure to tell them not to title their movie or tell anyone what movie they are doing as the game will be to identify what movie this movie is a remake of.

During the night of the party, let everyone know that they are going to watch movies and are going to need to identify what classic horror movie this is a remake of.

Don't tell them they may know the stars of these movies!

Original Idea – Mock the Blair Witch Project by...

Inviting friends to create a scary or humorous 5 minute film in the style of Blair Witch, then have a Halloween Film Festival and play the tapes. Ideas could be: A bathroom with no toilet paper, In a mall with no credit cards, Halloween is here and I don't have a costume, etc...
